

Welcome to SCIRMISH.....The best game you've never played!

Important: Don't look at the other pages if you want to play the game yourself!

What to do now:

This page explains how the game works. The other pages are part of the game. Print off the file, take a couple of minutes to read this page and then enjoy one of the best new games around...

How to play:

Scirmish is a game for two players and each player needs one of the printed sheets of paper and a pen. Each sheet has several pairs of grids that look like this:

	1	2	3	4	5	6
A		S	I	T	E
B		C	L	I	C	K
C		R
D	W	E	B
E		E	M	A	I	L
F	O	N	L	I	N	E

Each player uses one pair of grids per game, so what you see above is all you will need for a game. The grid on the left has 6 words in it (including a vertical word) and these are the words that your opponent will be trying to guess. Your opponent has a similar grid of words and you will be trying to guess those words and write them into the empty grid on the right.

Decide who will start and take alternate turns to play. When it's your turn, call out a letter. Your opponent must give you the grid references of every occurrence of that letter on their card (e.g. if the letter "E" was called in the example above, the grid references would be A5, D2, E2 and F6). You should fill in the corresponding squares in your empty grid. Then it is your opponent's turn.

You may only call out one letter per turn. If the letter is not on your opponent's grid then it is just bad luck, you must wait until your next turn to try again. When you think you know what one of your opponent's words is, you may take a guess at the beginning of your turn. You must say both what you think the word is and give the coordinates that you think it lies between. If you are right, you may either guess another word or call out a letter. When you have called a letter it is the end of your turn. On the other hand if your guess is wrong, it is the end of your turn.

The first player to guess all six of their opponent's words wins.

Hints and Clarifications: * At the bottom of each pad there is an alphabet which you may like to use to cross off the letters that you call out to your opponent.

* The words on each cards are somehow linked. So once you have correctly guessed one of your opponent's words, you can use that as a clue to guessing what the others might be.

* All the cards have one vertical six letter word and five horizontal words.

* If you guess a word correctly when you did not have all the letters marked down on your pad, remember that the letters that you haven't individually called may appear elsewhere too.
