

Welcome to Sketch Consequences™!

Sketch Consequences™ is a game for groups of 4 or more people, suitable for both families and adult groups. Depending on the child, most kids can start playing age 8 or 9.

What to do now:

Simple ! Print off this page once. Each player will need one copy of the next page for each round of the game you play (four rounds makes a good game). Take a moment to read this page and that's it! You're ready to play!

Getting Ready:

At the start of the game, each player will need a pen and one of the sheets of paper that you have just printed off.

How to play:

Each player begins by writing down a book title in the top box.

When this is done, everyone passes their sheet of paper to the player on their left. Then everyone draws a sketch of the title that appears on the sheet that they have just received. When this is done, they fold over the paper so that the title is concealed and only the sketch is visible.

Everyone passes their sheet of paper to the left again. Now you have to guess which book title is depicted by the sketch you have just received and write your guess in the text box.

Then fold over the paper so that the sketch is concealed and only the text is visible.

This continues until everyone reaches the bottom of the sheets. They are passed on once more and opened up so that the contents can provide lots of laughter all round!

If you find that people are taking too long over the sketches, introduce a time limit. Thirty seconds is good for adult groups but one minute is best if children are playing.

Scoring is optional – if you choose to score then make sure each player includes their initials beside each sketch or title they write. Award one point each time a player correctly guesses a sketch and also give a point to the person who drew the sketch. (This can be a little time consuming which is why it's optional). Keep a count of the scores so that you know who has won by the time you get to the end of the game.

We suggest that you vary the type of titles used each round. It makes the game work better if you choose a title that everyone else is familiar with.

Round 1: BOOK TITLES

Round 2: MOVIES

Round 3: TV SHOWS

Round 4: SONGS

For lots more games and fun, pay a visit to:

www.FreeBoardGames.com

Start title:

----- fold here when passing the picture below -----

Sketch the
title above:

----- fold here when passing the text box -----

Start title:

----- fold here when passing the picture below -----

Sketch the
title above:

----- fold here when passing the text box -----

Start title:

----- fold here when passing the picture below -----

Sketch the
title above:

----- fold here when passing the text box -----

Start title:

----- Now pass to the left to be opened up -----

Come and discover lots more fun and games at www.FreeBoardGames.com

© Copyright 2000 www.FreeBoardGames.com . All rights reserved worldwide.